

Review clips of Crazy Coppers

Coppers on the beat in Stinesminde

The three street coppers come from Dansk Rakkerpak and offered around healthy portions of "trungeon-pie" for most of the afternoon. Not many bystanders escaped correction, threats or a warning about future behavior, for the merriment and fun of all who were on the quayside.

Later they became mounted police, again providing splendid quayside entertainment.

Nordjyske, August, 2010

The other side of Gdansk

Crazy Coppers created confusion and tears of laughter amongst tourists and pedestrians in Gdansk, hitting out with fake truncheons, searching through pockets and posing for photographs. The comic presentation is based first and foremost upon improvisation and each and every pedestrian runs the risk of being the Danes next potential "victim".

Miroslaw Baran, GAZETA WYBORCZA, Gdansk - July, 2005

A Culture Night of truncheon-fun

The crazy coppers were engaged to keep law and order in the town. They did this with swinging truncheons, liberal use of police whistles and random arrests of the innocent citizens of Varde. Yes, even the lamp posts received a slap of the truncheon. They also managed to get hold of an escaping convict, who, in striped convict uniform, absailed down from the roof of the South Bank. A decidedly festive part of Culture Night!

Ugeavisen Varde, September, 2005